
Ambition

Forging links between economic and academic worlds, student and professional spheres, between practice and research, PLDH makes available its knowledge and resources, particularly by offering its legal expertise and network, to ensure the implementation of human rights around the world.

Innovation and dynamism

The members of the association, originating from professional and academic backgrounds from different countries (France, Switzerland, Germany and Canada), seek to improve knowledge on the implementation of human rights, not only through focus groups in various fields (application with the European Court of Human Rights, corporate social responsibility, right of asylum), but also by implementing tools to support legal research (publications). In addition, education and the transmission of knowledge are at the heart of the PLDH mission, inviting participants, through exchange, team work and contact with important personalities human rights and other fields, to open to new ways of thinking and to look for innovative solutions through the different activities proposed by the association (MootCourt, Kamingsgespräche, Masterclass).

Structures

Founding members board

The Founding members board determines the association's guidelines. It is made up of academics, law practitioners or experts in the PLDH fields of study, all from various backgrounds.

Wise persons committee

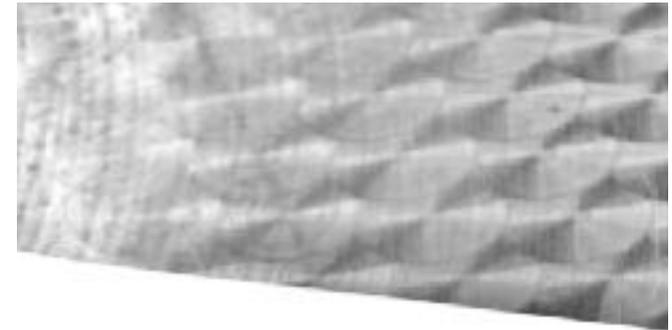

The wise persons committee is the association's scientific body, made up of prestigious academics and law practitioners from different countries. The Committee is chaired by Florence Benoît-Rohmer, president of PLDH.

The association

The PLDH association was founded in Strasbourg in 2006 by academics and professionals working in the legal field and committed to the implementation and defense of human rights. Under the direction of Florence Benoît-Rohmer, this non-profit organization, independent, apolitical and non-religious association constitutes a unique think tank in the protection of fundamental rights. The PLDH association does not take official positions or resolutions of a political or social nature.

An original approach

The PLDH association has taken it upon itself to encourage training and research on the application of human rights in Europe and all around the world. The association is committed to the issues emerging in the field of law, particularly due to economic and social evolutions. Conflict between human rights and new technologies, tax evasion, or insurance had already been studied by the association well before the courts considered the issue.
